BIODEGRADABILIDAD

La biodegradabilidad es la capacidad que tienen las sustancias y los materiales orgánicos de descomponerse en sustancias más simples mediante la actividad (enzimática) de microorganismos.

Cuando el proceso biológico se concluye se obtiene una transformación total de las sustancias orgánicas iniciales en moléculas inorgánicas simples: agua, anhídrido carbónico y metano.

Imitando estos procesos naturales, también los residuos orgánicos de las actividades humanas se pueden eliminar mediante la biodegradación.

COMPOSTABILIDAD

La compostabilidad es la capacidad de un material orgánico de transformarse en compost mediante el proceso de compostaje.

El compostaje es un proceso biológico aeróbico (que tiene lugar ante la presencia del oxígeno), controlado por el hombre. Conduce a la producción de una mezcla de materia orgánica.

El compost es un óptimo fertilizante, ya que contiene muchas sustancias orgánicas y microorganismos útiles para el suelo. La aportación de sustancia orgánica mejora la estructura del terreno y la biodisponibilidad de nutrientes.

Los envases compostables deben cumplir con la norma EN 13432, tal y como hacen todos los artículos compostables de I. Betik.

RECICLAJE

El reciclaje es un proceso cuyo objetivo es convertir desechos en nuevos productos o en materia prima para su posterior utilización.

Gracias al reciclaje se contribuye de forma satisfactoria a la sostenibilidad del medio ambiente, ya que se reduce el consumo de nueva materia prima, además de reducir el uso de energía, la contaminación del aire (a través de la incineración) y del agua (a través de los vertederos), así como también disminuir las emisiones de gases de efecto invernadero en comparación con la producción de nuevos artículos.

El reciclaje es un componente clave en la reducción de desechos contemporáneos y es el tercer componente de las 3R («Reducir, Reutilizar y Reciclar»).

CAÑA de azúcar

La caña de azúcar, extraída directamente de la planta, hace posible la creación de envases ecológicos y prácticos, que soportan altas temperaturas y son aptos para horno y microondas. Son un producto recurrente tanto para el día a día, como para el transporte de alimentos.

Su diseño y estética se caracterizan por ser elegantes y neutros, siempre atendiendo a la responsabilidad medio ambiental, ya que son tanto compostables como biodegradables.

PLA

El PLA, también llamado ácido poliláctico, deriva de materias primas naturales y renovables, como el maíz, y pertenece a los poliésteres como un polímero sintético. El almidón (glucosa) se extrae de las plantas y se convierte en dextrosa mediante la adición de enzimas.

Es una solución sostenible y compostable a nivel industrial, y sólo apto para bebidas frías.

TAKE

away

El take away, un término que hemos escuchado en numerosas ocasiones. Anteriormente se usaban embalajes de plástico, por ello, hemos desarrollado una gama muy variada en papel y cartón, que permite al consumidor continuar haciendo uso de estos, pero de una manera responsable y consecuente con el medio ambiente.
